Greeting from the President

Welcome to the 39th annual Red Wing Collectors Convention! Every year brings hundreds of collectors to Red Wing to “chase clay” from local antique shops, auctions, and the RWCS Show and Sale on Saturday. Over the years this gathering of collectors has become much more than simply the acquiring of new pieces for their collections. The renewing of friendships, the touring of the beautiful City of Red Wing, the Crock Hunt, the education, and the Crock Fest on Friday, all bring the collectors back to Red Wing each year.

The RWCS Chapter Presidents requested some “changes” to make the annual visit to Red Wing something to really look forward to this year, and our Executive Director, Stacy Wegner, the Board of Directors, and an untold number of volunteers have worked hard to fulfill this request. They have been working closely with the Pottery Museum to ensure that everyone will have the opportunity to visit the Museum during their stay. Pre-registration will be inside the Museum building, the “Wine-ing” fund raiser will be at the Museum again this year and tickets for the event will be available in the Museum gift shop for early purchase. The “Minnesota-Michigan” Brown Jug will be on display in the Museum so you can get a chance to view the actual jug that’s the traveling trophy for each year’s Minnesota/Michigan football game.

Changes abound at the High School also. All the events and seminars have been moved to the lower level and closer to the cafeteria gathering place to make getting around much easier. A new menu will be available at the cafeteria for this year’s convention. The annual Thursday night RWCS auction will include a number of high end stoneware and pottery pieces to give you the opportunity to return home with a new piece for your collection.

Of special interest this year, the Goodhue County Historical Society has offered to host Crock Fest at their facility in Red Wing on Friday evening. The RWCS has always worked closely with the Historical Society since the first RWCS gathering of collectors was held there in 1977. I guess you could say we are “returning home” for this event. The Historical Society will open their vault collection for everyone to see, and Clyde Deopner, Curator for the Minnesota Twins, will share his exhibit of Red Wing produced Minnesota Twins art pottery. A shuttle bus will run from “The Pottery Place” parking lot, AmericInn, and the Goodhue County Education Building parking lot to Crock Fest to make your visit to the event easy and convenient.

The last big change this year will be the Saturday “Show and Sale” at the Red Wing High School. We have opened the event up with larger booth spaces and will be allowing sellers to bring in more “quality” antiques besides the stoneware, art pottery, and dinnerware we are used to. We are hopeful this new venue for area sellers will become an annual event that our collectors and Red Wing residents will look forward to.

The City of Red Wing has worked closely with us to ensure your visit here will be memorable. The history of Red Wing is everywhere and we encourage you to roam the City, visit the museums, shop the many unique businesses, have a meal at one of the terrific restaurant’s, a beer at a local brewery, and of course there’s always the bakery for a wonderful donut or cookie while you discover Red Wing. We hope you enjoy this year’s convention and the beautiful City of Red Wing!

Welcome from the Executive Director

I hope your Excursion to Red Wing to join your fellow collectors has been great so far. It’s exciting bringing collectors together to mark the 100th Anniversary of the Potters Excursion! The Excursion was for the workers; it’s a fitting theme to celebrate this year. Like collectors, the potter’s had a passion for pottery!

This year more than ever members came out to support the convention and without all the volunteers this convention would not be successful. I would like to take this opportunity to give special thanks to all the volunteers that make the convention possible.

The Supplement is your resource to find out more about the Crock Hunt (page 24), Crock Fest (page 9), Educational Opportunities (page 12), and the full Schedule of Events (page 6). Reminder: some events at the High School have moved to new locations. Check out the signs and head in the right direction.

The RWCS appreciates the continued support of so many organizations in Red Wing: RWCS Foundation, Red Wing area businesses, Republican Eagle staff, Red Wing High School, Red Wing Visitor and Convention Bureau, Red Wing Area Chamber, Red Wing Downtown Main Street, City of Red Wing, Pottery Museum of Red Wing, Goodhue County Historical Society, Larry’s Jugs and all those who make everything possible.

Congratulation Members - this year will mark the 39th annual convention for our organization. It is with great excitement that I also mark my 10th RWCS Convention.

Have a great Convention!

Welcome from the History Center

The Goodhue County History Center is located at 1166 Oak St., Red Wing.

Welcome back to Red Wing and Goodhue County!

Well it is finally here...Convention! It was at Convention last year that I purchased my first pottery piece. I could not resist; I was hooked! The Goodhue County Historical Society staff and board have been looking forward to this year’s Convention for many months. You will get to meet many new faces when visiting the History Center but most of all, you will have the opportunity to come back to the location where the Red Wing Collectors Society began. We view it as an honor and privilege to be hosting Crock Fest this year at the History Center. The theme of Going Home will take on many different meanings during the event. The RWCS will be having a main event back where it all began in 1977. But Going Home goes beyond returning to your roots, it also means baseball! Clyde Doeppner, an RWCS member and curator for the Minnesota Twins, has put together an exhibit on memorabilia from the 1965 Major League Baseball All-Star Game hosted in Minnesota as well as items from the 1965 World Series. As our contribution to the education seminars, Doug “Freight Train” Ernst will talk about baseball in American culture. Doug and I both play 1860s base ball (no that is not a typo!) or vintage base ball so I’m sure he will delight you with the rules of the day.

Goodhue County is a beautiful area. Don’t forget to make time to enjoy its natural wonder while in town. Enjoy your time with friends and fellow collectors during this year’s convention. We look forward to seeing you!

Welcome to Red Wing!

Welcome to the Red Wing Collectors Society Convention – and welcome to Red Wing! All of us in Red Wing are proud of the success of the Pottery Museum; it has turned out to be a great asset for the community. We are looking forward to sharing the experience with you. I know your stay in Red Wing will be rewarding; we have many outdoor recreational activities available for visitors, as well as dining, shopping, and sight-seeing. I am hoping to greet you all soon!

Greetings from the RWCS Foundation

On behalf of the Foundation and Pottery Museum we welcome you to Red Wing! July 8th will mark a year since the ribbon cutting for the Pottery Museum of Red Wing. The past year we have had over 8,000 visitors from all over the world - 42 different states and 15 countries.

The museum is very proud and honored to have received the 2014 Business of the Year award for Arts & Entertainment, Lodging, Recreation & Tourism. We also were awarded by the City of Red Wing Heritage Preservation Commission the 2015 Award of Merit. For our participation in the Inaugural Red Wing Museum Crawl in 2014, we along with 5 other museums received the Minnesota History Award from the Minnesota Alliance of Local Museums (MALHM).

During the Convention be sure to check out the Museum, our new “The Summer Kitchen” exhibit, and the “Little Brown Jug.” We look forward to seeing all of you at Wine-ing for Red Wing event on Wednesday 6-9 p.m. You can purchase your ticket in advance at the Pottery Museum Gift Store.

Museum Hours are Tuesday thru Saturday 9-5 p.m. and Sundays 11-4 p.m. with expanded hours during your Convention. Follow us on Facebook. Enjoy your visit to Red Wing and the Pottery Museum of Red Wing!

Printed, written history being preserved in archives

By Ruth Nerhaugen
Contributor

Much of Red Wing's pottery history can be found in the stoneware, dinnerware and art pottery on display at the Pottery Museum of Red Wing.

But there is more — lots more.

In a cool, windowless back room at the museum, volunteer Michelle Weisen has undertaken the massive task of organizing and preserving written and printed material dating back to the earliest years of the industry in Red Wing.

The Red Wing Collectors Society Foundation has a huge collection of photographs and negatives, maps, drawings, letters, business documents and other ephemera. Much of it was part of the collection donated by Louise Schleich and her late husband Jerry.

Weisen, a former English professor and Red Wing native, got involved when she moved back to Minnesota from Philadelphia.

She learned about Red Wing's new Pottery Museum when she attended a Kiwanis meeting with her parents, Don and Mary Felmlee of Red Wing. Then she discovered that an old Red Wing High School classmate, Robin Wipperling, was the museum director.

Weisen asked her old friend, "Did you get papers with this Schleich collection?"

Wipperling sent her to Diane Hallstrom, who had custody of stacks of boxes filled with papers, some of them in the process of disintegrating.

When she realized the scope of the collection, Weisen turned to St. Catherine University teacher Molly Hazelton. A group of her students in the Society of American Archivists were interested in working on the collection as a community partnership project.

Weisen had some training, but signed up for a class to learn more herself. She ultimately brought 15 boxes of documents to St. Kate's containing everything from 1880s correspondence to business papers, receipts and more.

They came up with categories," she said, and divided into teams. "Then we went to work. We archived."

Those materials went into four primary categories: business administration; publications by potteries; manufacturing and orders; and Ann Williams papers.

Weisen explained that in the 1980s Williams gathered materials she planned to put in a book about the pottery, but she died before it was finished.

The students put everything in special folders and filed them chronologically in archival boxes, then returned everything to Weisen at the Red Wing museum.

The archives are in a very special room, she said. Wood cannot be used, so Wipperling's husband, Keith Kaiser, created glass tables on wheels. It has no windows, and is temperature controlled and sanitized. There are two fireproof safes.

My biggest fear is water," Weisen said, so special measures were taken for added protection.

Since the archives room became available this spring, she has been coming to Red Wing at least two days a week. "There are so many sorts that need to be done for organization," she said, explaining that chronological sorting is just a first step.

In May Weisen began creating a computerized database of the materials, since the goal is to eventually make it all available for research.

The first level, a listing of materials, should be computerized by the end of this year. With that, researchers should be able to discover what materials exist in the archives.

The collection also includes many photographs, negatives and maps. "At some point I will bring groups together to try and identify the old photos," she said.

The archives will be open during the RWCS Convention, Weisen said.

Archivist Michelle Weisen is developing a collection of books about Red Wing-made pottery.

Little Brown Jug, author coming to Convention

By Ruth Nerhaugen
Contributor

One of Red Wing's best-known pottery treasures — the Little Brown Jug that represents the Minnesota-Michigan college football rivalry — will come "home" for a short visit during the 2015 Red Wing Collectors Society Convention.

The society arranged to have the trophy jug on display during the Convention in conjunction with the keynote presentation by Ken Magee, a sports historian who has co-written a book on the Gopher-Wolverine rivalry.

Magee will speak and show slides at 10:30 a.m. July 9 at Red Wing High School. Because there are so many Gopher and football fans in the immediate area, the session will be open to the public without charge.

The Little Brown Jug will be displayed at the Pottery Museum of Red Wing that week, and will be transported to the high school for Magee's presentation.

Magee, who is from Ann Arbor, Mich., is an expert on Wolverine football history.

He stressed, however, that his book, "The Little Brown Jug: The Michigan-Minnesota Rivalry," is entirely neutral in its treatment of the two teams.

Likewise, his presentation will focus on the people and events surrounding the Little Brown Jug, including dispelling some of the myths about how it all began.

Football fans know that the zinc-glazed, 5-gallon stoneware jug made in Red Wing bears the scores of Gopher-Wolverine contests dating back to 1903. It had been purchased by Michigan's student manager for 30 cents, and was left behind when the Wolverines were sent home in defeat.

The jug became a traveling trophy, one that stayed with the winning team.

That's just the beginning of the story, however. In the book he co-authored with Jon Stevens, Magee details the storied history of the rivalry, from the famous people who played in the games to the curious incident in the 1930s when it was stolen.

Many famous people played for the two teams, Magee pointed out, including President Gerald Ford and Heisman Trophy winners Bruce Smith and Tom Harmon. One man — and only one — played for both teams when they captured the jug, he said: Bill Daley.

The book is filled with more than 200 images donated from the private collections of sports enthusiasts, photographers and libraries.

Michigan fan Ken Magee will talk about the Little Brown Jug and the Minnesota-Michigan rivalry at the RWCS convention. The presentation is free and open to the public.

Collectors Society Executive Director Stacy Wegner was among local residents assisting with research. When he contacted the society, she provided information published by the RWCS and connected him with collectors here.

"I knew he would be a great speaker for our convention," she said. "With the Minnesota Gophers recently winning the jug back from Michigan, it's perfect timing."

Magee's presentation will include a slide show featuring additional rarely seen photos that are not in the book.

In addition to selling and signing copies of the book, he also will bring some special items to the convention, including a commemorative bookmark with an image of the jug that includes the results of the 2014 game. The softcover book sells for $20.

"I will have with me some artifacts for viewing and for purchase," he said, adding these will be "doubles" from his personal collection. "I buy, sell and trade" Little Brown Jug memorabilia, including contemporary replica jugs.

In addition, he has replica trophies in three sizes, from tiny to very large, and a reproduction pennant resembling one from the 1900s but with the jug on it.

Magee is a retired law enforcement officer whose career included serving as chief of police for the University of Michigan.

A portion of proceeds from book sales is going to a foundation that assists police officers who have been permanently injured in the line of duty and their families. He is currently finishing up a book on the Michigan-Ohio State rivalry.

Magee invited anyone with questions or information to contact him at kenmagee22@aol.com, or to visit with him at the convention. He is looking for contemporary replica jugs that may have been made by collectors groups.

Author Ken Magee will bring replicas of the Little Brown Jug and vintage style banners to Red Wing High School, where he will give the keynote address for the July 9 opening of the 2015 RWCS Convention.

Twins RW memorabilia on display during CrockFest

Twins curator Clyde Doepner holds a 1965 All-Star Game plate and a framed Beatles album that he displays with a paper autographed by the band before they performed that year at Met Stadium.

By Ruth Nerhaugen
Contributor

Three cases full of memorabilia from the 1965 Minnesota Twins — including Red Wing-made pieces commemorating the All-Star Game and the World Series — can be seen at the Goodhue County History Center during the RWCS 2015 Convention.

Clyde Doepner, curator for the Minnesota Twins, put together a “Going Home” exhibit at the History Center, 1166 Oak St., which is the site of this year’s Crockfest on July 10.

Doepner filled three cases with jerseys, bats, tickets, hats and other items from the 1965 season when the Twins hosted the July 13 All-Star game at Metropolitan Stadium and played against the L.A. Dodgers in the World Series.

At the heart of the collection, however, are the Red Wing Potteries pieces.

Doepner told the story in an article in the April 2011 RWCS Newsletter.

To mark the All-Star Game, he said, “Red Wing produced a blueish-green plate in the shape of home plate.” In addition to game details and baseball images, it was embossed with “Make your home plate Minnesota. Karl Rolvaag, Governor.”

The souvenir plates were given to dignitaries and members of the press.

Red Wing also commemorated the World Series with a brown double bowl/ashtray. One of the bowls says “Minnesota Twins, American League Champions,” and it is embossed with the Minnie and Paul logo showing players shaking hands across the Mississippi River.

Around the same time the pottery came out with a small ashtray in the shape of Minnesota that duplicates the Minnie and Paul characters. Doepner’s collection includes this piece in several colors.

Doepner, a member of the Red Wing Collectors Society since the early 1980s, is a former Pine Island High School history teacher and baseball coach.

He’s also been a Twins supporter all his life, and has extensive knowledge of the organization. He owns one of the largest Twins memorabilia collections in the world, and it grows every year. Those items span the ball club’s history.

As curator for the Minnesota Twins, he is in charge of maintaining the team’s collection of historical items. Items from his collection rotate on display at Target Field for fans to see and enjoy.

Before ballgames, he gives tours at the downtown Minneapolis ballpark, explaining the items in the glass display cases, which he puts together and maintains.

Doepner worked with Casey Mathern, the new curator of objects and exhibits at the county museum, to fill three cases with items from his collection. The exhibit will remain in the lobby until late August, she said.

Although Doepner is unable to spend much time at the RWCS Convention because there are day games that weekend at Target Field, he hopes to get down early for Saturday’s show and sale, where he sometimes finds treasures for his collections.

The Historical Society has invited Doepner to speak at the museum later this summer. No date is set yet.

He can be reached at clydedoepner@twinsbaseball.com.

CrockFest 'Going Home' to History Center

By Ruth Nerhaugen
Contributor

Going Home" is theme for the 2015 Crockfest, which is moving back to where it all began — the grounds of the Goodhue County History Center.

The annual party, which brings together community residents and convention-goers for an evening of camaraderie, music and food, will be from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m. July 10.

The earliest official gathering of Red Wing stoneware and pottery collectors took place in July 1977 at the museum.

At that one-day event they formed the Red Wing Collectors Society with more than 200 Charter Members.

Although collectors have always been welcome at the history center during Convention Week, this is the first time since 1977 that the group is going "back to our roots" with a major gathering, Executive Director Stacy Wegner said.

This year's CrockFest will feature live music by Sheep for Wheat, a Winona area band featuring the museum's Education and Outreach Director James Clinton on drums. Other members are singer/guitarist Andrew Hudson, guitarist/keyboardist/singer Joseph Martin; and guitarist/singer Steve Bernstein.

They'll perform blues and rock 'n' roll tunes, mostly covers from the 1960s and '70s. The crowd can expect hits by Creedence Clearwater Revival, Eric Clapton, James Brown and the like, along with classic blues by artists such as Howlin' Wolf.

Liberty's Restaurant will be back selling food, and this year the Historical Society will have hot dogs, bratwurst and root beer floats. No alcohol will be sold there, but people can bring their own.

Admission to the museum will be free, said Executive Director Dustin Heckman.

Staff will conduct vault tours allowing visitors to "see our archives and collections storage areas — things people don't usually get to see," Heckman said. The focus will be on pottery and pottery-related items and materials.

The museum also will be displaying art pottery, stoneware, sewer pipe and a number of one-of-a-kind "lunch hour" pieces, he added.

In the lobby, visitors will find a unique exhibit — a collection of Minnesota Twins memorabilia owned by Clyde Doepner, curator for the Twins.

Included will be pottery pieces made in Red Wing for the 1965 All-Star Game and World Series.

CrockFest will be the largest gathering at the History Center in many years.

For us," Heckman said, "this is just a huge opportunity to have a big community event like this... It will give us an idea about future things we can do."

CrockFest attracted 200 to 400 people from the community and the Convention when it was held in Central Park in the past.

Because parking is limited, the RWCS has arranged a shuttle service for use by anyone who wants to come to the fest, Wegner said.

Pickups will be made at the AmericInn, the Pottery Museum of Red Wing, and the parking lot of the Goodhue County Education District (formerly Jefferson School) at 601 Buchanan St., just down the hill from the museum. The shuttle run from 5 p.m. to about 9:30 p.m.

People also encouraged to BYO lawn chairs.

EDUCATION DAY - Friday, July 10th

FRIDAY, JULY 10 EDUCATIONAL SEMINARS

Technology and the RWCS

Speaker: Paul Wichert

Session 1: 10:00 a.m. to 10:50 a.m.

Did you know that there are more than 20,000 pages on the RWCS website? Whether you're looking for information about upcoming meetings, events, Chapters, classified ads, or even current or past RWCS Newsletter issues, it's all there for you in an easy to navigate format.

Paul Wichert will present a tour of the RWCS website and all it has to offer. From smartphones to the traditional PC, the RWCS is embracing technology and we want to help you harness that power.

This is a great opportunity to see our website, ask questions, and offer your ideas to help expand the Society's technology opportunities. Paul will also discuss smartphone apps, online voting, QR codes, and a host of related subjects to give you a better idea of where we are and where we intend to go.

Speaker Biography:

Paul Wichert, RWCS Vice President, is an Information Technology professional by trade. He is a longtime collector of Red Wing and advertising stoneware and has been a RWCS member since 1992. He presently resides on the Technology Committee. He has also worked on the Commemorative distribution crew since 1993. He is a Charter Member of the RWCS Badger Chapter. Paul and his wife live in Waukesha, WI.

Red Wing Saffron Ware

Speakers: Brent & Debbie Mischke

Session 1: 10:00 a.m. to 10:50 a.m.

Session 2: 11:00 a.m. to 11:50 a.m.

This presentation will cover all the basics of Saffron Ware collecting – types of pieces available, styles of decoration, etc. New discoveries from the past few years will also be included.

Speaker Biography:

Brent & Deb were introduced to Red Wing collecting by RWCS Charter Member Martha Behrens, and they joined the Red Wing Collectors Society in 1980. Besides Saffron Ware they are interested in collecting bowls, Gypsy Trail and Town &

Country dinnerware lines, and New Brighton, Pennsylvania stoneware.

DuoTone (Cylinder) Line & Recent Dinnerware Updates

Terry Moe and Larry Roschen

Session: 1 10:00 a.m. to 10:50 a.m.

Session: 2 11:00 a.m. to 11:50 a.m.

Larry Roschen and Terry Moe will review the Duo-Tone line (also known as Cylinder). Red Wing produced six patterns in the Duo-Tone shape, including Pepe and Flight as well as seldom seen patterns. In addition, they will present updates on recent dinnerware finds including Pansy Kiitchenware, and Mixer Bowls. They will also be revealing, for the first time, exciting new Village Green discoveries.

The seminar is based almost entirely upon primary source materials from Red Wing Potteries. Brochures, Price Lists, Company internal documents, advertising materials and displayed dinnerware items provide the resources for the presentation.

Speaker Biographies:

Terry Moe and his wife Marilyn have been collecting Red Wing pottery since they inherited a partial set of Gypsy Trail

Keynote

Title: The Little Brown Jug: The Michigan-Minnesota Rivalry

Speaker: Ken Magee

Thursday: July 9, 10:30 a.m.

The 110-year legacy of the Little Brown Jug rivalry of Michigan and Minnesota Universities lives on. Ken Magee, key note speaker, will take you on a journey of one of college football's greatest rivalries and the first "trophy game." Throughout his presentation Ken will show you many rarely seen photographs that memorialize this great rivalry, and the many myths and stories surrounding the famous traveling trophy. This session hopes to share some of these stories, and debunk others! There may be some new stories you have not heard before. What may well be the most publically famous piece of Red Wing Stoneware is sure to be of interest to all, college sports fan or not.

Speaker Biography:

Ken Magee is a highly decorated retired law enforcement officer of over 30 years. Ken was raised in Ann Arbor Michigan in the shadows of Michigan Stadium and began attending Wolverine football games at a very young age. A family friend of the Schembechlers led to a life long love affair with Michigan football. As a historian of football, Ken also owns the largest private collection of vintage Wolverine football artifacts in the world and is honored to have many of his historic rare items on loan and displayed at the University of Michigan Football Museum in the Ann Arbor. In 2014 Ken co-authored the book "The Little Brown Jug: The Michigan-Minnesota Rivalry", and has recently completed his second book "The Game: The Michigan-Ohio State Rivalry". Both books take a neutral viewpoint on these outstanding rivalries. Ken encourages football fans and collectors to contact him directly via cell phone 503-781-3174 or email "Kenmagee22@aol.com"

Hands-on Pottery Experience & Shared Interest Groups

HANDS on with COLOR– Create your piece of pottery

Presenter: Richard Spiller

Thursday July 9 and Friday July 10

Every Hour on the Hour 9:00 a.m. – 3:00 p.m.

4 students per session

Pottery creation opportunities choose ONE of the three:

- Two, 6 inch tiles
- One, 6 inch tile and One, 4 inch crock (designs should be 4x10 inches for the crock)

COLOR using Engobe slips will be available this year and using low fire earthenware Red Clay. Each person having chosen a format (4 inch crock and/or 6 inch tile) will have the opportunity to select several engobe colors and use scraffito technique, that is scratching thru both through layers of slip which is the white engobe. The engobe slips give you the option for color as does the scraffito technique for exposing the red clay. After the Convention, the pieces will be fired to low fire temperature with a clear glaze and shipped to the participant. Sign up at the Registration Desk!

Presenter Biography:

Richard Spiller a resident of rural Wisconsin, Spiller was educated at Western Michigan University and the University of Wisconsin – Madison. An Emeritus Professor of Art at Eastern Carolina University, Spiller has been a practicing potter and ceramic artist for nearly 50 years. His expertise included kiln building with firing experience from corn cob raku to Tozan Noboigama and firing to cone 10 reduction. Walk-ups welcome.

Orientation for First Timers

Speaker: Catherine Beall

Thursday: July 9, 9:00 a.m. – 10:00 a.m.

Friday: July 10, 9:00 a.m. – 10:00 a.m.

If 2014 will be your first time attending the Red Wing Collectors Society Convention, there is a lot to see and do! Start your first Convention experience out right by attending an Orientation Seminar led by longtime RWCS member Catherine Beall. Catherine will discuss all of the activities that are lined up and offer tips on making the most of your Convention experience.

Speaker Biography:

Hello all, my name is Catherine Beall. I have been involved in the Red Wing Convention for over ten years now. I have been speaking at the Convention for four years now. My interest in Red Wing is the history and preservation of that history. The Charles E. Murphy prints are my particular area of interest. Hope to see you all there.

Shared Interest Groups Groups: Stoneware, Dinnerware, Art Pottery, Social Media H100 Classrooms

Thursday, July 9, 2:30 p.m. – 3:30 p.m.

Come show off your favorite piece, new find at Convention, or photos of your collection. Talk with other RWCS members that share your specific Red Wing collecting passion for Dinnerware, Stoneware, or Art Pottery. This is your time to network with other collectors and swap stories, ask questions and get connected with other RWCS members with your area of interest.

Rooms will be marked for each major area of Red Wing pottery production, history, and future: Stoneware, Dinnerware, Art Pottery, and Social Media will be featured this year. More groups may be created on site as requested.

Terry Moe & Larry Roschen – Dinnerware
Sue Chapman – Facebook Group Meeting

EDUCATION DAY - Friday, July 10th

Plain and Reed in 1975 from Terry’s Grandmother. They primarily collect dinnerware. Gypsy Trail, Wreath, Ivanhoe, Nassau, Ardennes, Hotel or Restaurant, and Normandy along with Merrileaf have been their main focus. Primary source materials allowing them to document dinnerware have become a major interest.

Larry Roschen and his wife Kathy have collected all forms of Red Wing pottery since 1980. Red Wing pitchers, teapots, salt & pepper shakers are primary collecting interests along with building complete sets of several dinnerware patterns. Larry’s interests have turned from growing the collection to learning more about the Red Wing dinnerware lines through research of vintage documents. Larry currently serves as the dinnerware advisor for the “Ask the Experts” section of the RWCS website and serves on the board of the Red Wing Collectors Society Foundation.

Larry and Terry have conducted numerous dinnerware seminars for RWCS Midwinter and Summer Conventions.

Hunting History

Speaker: Nancy Lambert

Session: 1 10:00 a.m. to 10:50 a.m.
Session 2: 11:00 a.m. to 11:50 p.m.

Grocers, hardware stores, liquor dealers and general mercantile stores used zinc stoneware to advertise their businesses in the late 1800s into the twentieth century. They are the topic of a new book Nancy Lambert has published - Kansas & Missouri Advertising Stoneware, made in Red Wing. Methods used to research, assemble and publish the book will be discussed, as well as the task of photography and design. She got the idea when she acquired a special piece from Topeka, Kansas and did the research about the business. The project was supported by the Trails West Chapter and all profit from the books will be donated to help fund the Pottery Museum of Red Wing.

Speaker Biography:

Nancy Lambert has been a member of RWCS since 1997. She holds a masters degree in journalism and worked in the printing industry for 45 years before retiring. She collects brushed ware and anything else that catches her eye and her husband Wayne collects North Star. She has always had an interest in history and put together the updated commemorative book for the 2012 Convention. She is a charter member of the Trails West Chapter and served 10 years as Treasurer. She joined the RWCS Foundation Board in 2013.

Dump Finds

Paul Boudin & Connie Matthison

Session: 1 10:00 a.m. to 10:50 a.m.
Session 2: 11:00 a.m. to 11:50 p.m.

Come and join us for some fun and informational discussions on our coolest digs from Pottery Road and the Red Wing Dump. It has been another good year of digging. We have unearthed some neat and unusual pieces. Last but not least, due to my overflowing shed, we will have a “few” shards to give away!

Speaker Biographies:

Paul and Connie joined the RWCS in 2007. After attending Steve Showers seminar that year, they were hooked on digging. They also go with Steve and Phyllis Showers around the area digging old bottle dumps. They have been collecting stoneware since the year 2000. Paul collects salt glaze, advertising, and has recently started collecting art pottery. Connie loves bowls, but does collect other RW pieces. They are members of the Gopher and Trails West Chapters. They attend MidWinter also.

Title: Baseball in American Art and Culture

Doug Ernst, on behalf of the Goodhue County Historical Society

Session: 2 11:00 am. To 11:50 a.m.
Session: 3 1:00 p.m. to 1:50 p.m.

Baseball in American Art and Culture will explore ways that baseball is woven into the fabric of America. Through hands on, interactive opportunities the audience will be involved in the discussion of “America’s Sport.” Additionally, the audience will be brought through some aspects of American history using Baseball art as a basis of illustrating the points being made. Baseball has been used to help define aspects of American politics, retail manufacturing, attitudes about fair play, amateur play, health, photography, advertising, and even religious beliefs. We will touch on all of this.

Speaker Biography:

Doug Ernst taught writing, literature, and history for over 25 years. He has written for The National Pastime, official publication of the Society of American Baseball Research, distributed to members in this country and world-wide. Doug has been a living history interpreter at “The Landing” near Shakopee for 9 years. He has played on the 1860 Quicksteps Base Ball Club for 11 years, been field Captain for 5 and now club Manager. He is a member of the Vintage Base Ball Association for 10 years and elected Secretary of the National organization. He has lectured to school and church groups.

Historical Potteries of Central Iowa

Speaker: Mark Wiseman

Session: 3 1:00 p.m. to 1:50 p.m.
Session: 4 2:00 p.m. to 2:50 p.m.

Session Description:

The researched historical information concerning the Potteries that were present in Des Moines, Iowa, and the potters of Des Moines from 1850 to 1900 (approx) and the connections to the potteries and potters that also worked in Hartford, Carlisle, and Palmyra in Warren County, and Boonesboro in Boone County, Iowa. Photographs of the known historical pottery pieces, and display and discussion of actual pottery pieces from these potteries.

Speaker Biography:

Mark C. Wiseman is a geologist and author. He is Newsletter Editor for the Iowa Antique Bottleers, author of multiple articles on Iowa bottles and breweries, and the author of the books “A History of the Moingona Potteries,” “A History of the Eldora Potteries,” and A History of the Des Moines Potteries.” His hobbies include bottle and stoneware collecting, and digging for both groups.

Join Michelle for the story behind the Red Wing Pottery Archives. Find out what an archivist is, and the responsibilities associated with the position. Michelle will relate her experiences from the initial sort of the documents, cataloging with the assistance of St. Kate’s Master of Library Science Graduate students, and the construction of the vault at the Red Wing Pottery Museum. Historical documents will be on display during the session. The digital age makes it possible to enter information on the computer and make it available to our patrons. Speaker Biography:

Professor Michelle (Felmlee) Weisen grew up in Red Wing, Minnesota. After graduating from Central High School, she moved to Miami, Florida where she earned her Master’s Degree in English from Florida International University. Her graduate degree and children’s series focuses on Victorian literature. She has been on the English faculty at Florida International University and the University of Delaware. Michelle has recently completed a year of archival studies at St. Catherine’s University in St. Paul.

A self-described “old soul,” Michelle lives in Rochester with her pug Elmo and three turtles (parting gifts from former students). Her son, Ian, follows in his mother’s footsteps and runs his own video production company in Los Angeles.

Michelle is an avid collector of Red Wing Pottery. “Wherever I traveled, I always had a piece of home to take with me. The opportunity to start a library at the museum is a dream come true. Returning to my home town has brought my life full circle.”

Reunion of Potters' Excursion jugs is planned

How many Potters' Excursion jugs were made? How many still exist?

By Ruth Nerhaugen
Contributor

One hundred years ago, some Red Wing potters came up with a great idea to help publicize their big fundraiser, a boat excursion to St. Paul and back.

Let's make a jug," someone must have said. "We can put it in the front windows of the stores to let people know where they can buy tickets."

The ploy definitely worked.

The Potters' Excursion held on July 11, 1915, was the most successful ever. More than 1,000 men, women and children participated.

The Stoneware Potters' Union raised much-needed money to help fund disability and retirement benefits for potters, whose employers did not offer those benefits.

Whatever happened to those jugs?

For that matter, how many Potters' Excursion jugs were made? How many still survive?

There are no records that identify a specific number made," Red Wing collector Steve Brown said.

He figures that the 100th anniversary of the excursion is the perfect time to find out, so he organized a reunion of Potters' Excursion jugs at this year's RWCS Convention.

Brown has reserved space in the display room for an exhibit. His Potters' Excursion jug will be there, and one from the Pottery Museum of Red Wing collection.

In fact, he said, "I have four confirmed. I'm hoping to be surprised — I'm expecting to be surprised" by how many more show up this week.

The display will also have stories and information about the event that inspired the special advertising jug, because for collectors, the story is a big part of their fascination with Red Wing-made pottery.

In 1895, the employees of the various local potteries formed a committee to arrange and coordinate benefits. They held dances and shows at the old Opera Hall, and plays at the Sheldon Theatre after it opened in the early 1900s.

The biggest and most successful" fundraiser was an excursion, Brown said.

Starting around 1912, the group began hiring the steamboat G.W. Hill, of the Wisherd Lines, for day trips. At 190 feet in length and 36 feet in width, it could accommodate 2,000 passengers.

The 1915 excursion was an early morning to late night affair, with stops in several towns going up and down the river. The pottery declared the day a holiday so all the workers could participate.

The G.W. Hill had a dance floor, an orchestra and a calliope, plus tables for those who preferred to play card games. No liquor was allowed, but picnic lunches were served.

The cost, Brown said, was 75 cents for adults and 40 cents for children. At that time, he pointed out, a typical pottery employee made $2 a week.

In 1915, the cruise was promoted as the social event of the season. Large ads were published in newspapers, and Red Wing Union Stoneware Co. made one-gallon, brown-top shoulder jugs with the date. The jugs have no back or bottom markings.

Brown acquired his Potters' Excursion jug years ago. He and his father, Dave Brown, collected Red Wing pieces together when Steve was growing up. "We gravitated to lunch hour pieces and local Red Wing advertising items," he said.

It was one of the pieces we were able to acquire early on" because it fit their "collecting niche," he added.

Brown even commissioned local artist Larry Veeder around 1980 to paint a picture of the prized pieces in their collection — including the Potters' Excursion jug. Prints of that painting are still prized by collectors.

Fascinated by the stories that accompany the pieces, the former RWCS and Foundation historian did his research. "The majority of the (Potters' Excursion) story has been pretty well documented," he said — except for little details such as how many were made.

There's a particularly interesting story about one wayward jug.

About a month before the excursion, one of the jugs was dropped in the water near Prescott, Wis., corked and with a note in it.

The note said that whoever found the jug should return it to Red Wing boatman Roxie Nelson for a free ticket on the excursion.

But the jug wasn't found until after the event. Chas. L. and C.A. Carlson, who found it near Trudell Slough, were instead given 5 gallons of gasoline as a prize. Nelson reportedly kept the jug as a souvenir.

That story and other details about the trip and the jugs have been compiled by Brown because he wants to share the stories with the other Potters' Excursion jug owners.

He's spread the word via the newsletter and other sources, reaching out in hopes the others will bring their jugs to the convention, where he'll be waiting in the display room.

More than 1,000 people participated in the 1915 Potters' Excursion aboard the G.W. Hill steamboat.

We're trying to get a baseline of all the information so it will always travel with the jug," he said.

But more than that, "It's just plain cool to get them together on their 100th anniversary. It's good for Red Wing and for collectors."

Anyone who has a jug, a story or other information can contact him at convention or call and leave information with Pottery Museum Director Robin Wipperling at 651-327-2220.

Rowe Pottery produces first RWCS commemorative

By Ruth Nerhaugen
Contributor

For the first time, Rowe Pottery Works of Cambridge, Wis., produced the commemorative for the 2015 Red Wing Collectors Society Convention.

Rowe also is responsible for 2-gallon shoulder jugs ordered by individual collectors chapters to be auctioned off at Red Wing High School during the July 9-11 Convention.

What exactly the 39th commemorative is will not be revealed until Thursday of Convention Week.

Bev Semmann, owner of Rowe Pottery since spring of 2013, would only say that there are three versions again this year. Collectors will not know which version they get until they open their box at the distribution site.

As in the past, 90 percent are Version A, 8 percent are Version B, and only 2 percent are Version C.

We have really enjoyed working on the Red Wing project," Semmann said. "It's been fun."

Rowe Pottery was chosen after commemorative manager Bob Morowski interviewed officials and toured the facility to check the quality of their work, Semmann said.

The company apparently came to his attention because Rowe formerly worked with Maple City.

We specialize in customized and personalized crocks and pottery," she said, along with household décor, dinnerware and serving pieces. "We work with a lot of groups, organizations and businesses to create custom pottery."

Longtime collector Bev Semmann is now owner of Rowe Pottery, which produced the 2015 RWCS commemorative.

Rowe, which has four potters on staff, produces both molded pieces and hand-thrown pottery.

The Red Wing project was especially interesting, Semmann said, because it also involved glaze development.

The 32 Chapter jugs are two colors, she noted, plus a Rowe employee hand-painted the designs submitted by the Chapters for their individual auction items.

What a cool project to be associated with the history and heritage of such an amazing pottery organization," she added.

Rowe Pottery Works was established in 1975 in Cambridge, Wis., about 20 miles east of Madison. Originally a one-man potter's studio, it has grown substantially while staying true to the craft's tradition.

Rowe has a retail store in that community and also sells via an online store, rowepottery.com; through about 300 retail stores nationwide, and through catalogues.

Red Brick Pottery starts new chapter at Pottery Place

By Ruth Nerhaugen
Contributor

The latest incarnation of the pottery industry in Red Wing has a new name but a familiar face.

Scott Keith, who was an onsite potter at the former Red Wing Pottery Salesroom for 17 years, has opened his own business: Red Brick Pottery.

Located in the Pottery Place mall, which is a former pottery factory, Red Brick Pottery is named in honor of the multitude of red bricks that were used in the construction of the historic building. It's just across the parking lot from the Pottery Museum of Red Wing.

Keith plans to be open daily during the RWCS Convention to meet and greet many of the collectors he has gotten to know since 1996.

He spent much of his life and got much of his education in Wisconsin, although he first learned the potter's craft through an apprenticeship program "out east." He returned to Wisconsin and established a studio and kiln near Viroqua.

"I bought what was left of an old town, Newton," he explained, and created a studio and kiln — Newton Valley Pottery — in what had been the town store. It remains a part of his life.

After a few years of art fairs, Keith went to work for Rowe Pottery, a larger production facility in Cambridge, Wis., in 1983. Coincidentally, Rowe is producing this year's RWCS commemorative.

As he continued developing his skills, Keith was associated with Rockdale Union Stoneware and Cedar Swamp Stoneware where he got additional training in salt-glaze methods.

When he heard that Scott Gillmer of Red Wing was looking for someone to start up a salt-glaze operation here, Keith pursued the opportunity. In 1996 he built a kiln at the Pottery Salesroom, and firing began that summer.

"Every year we did a firing for the (RWCS) convention," he said. "In the beginning collectors would camp out overnight, waiting for the annual convention piece."

Each potter would create perhaps a half-dozen numbered pieces for the convention, Keith recalled. During his 17-year tenure, he figures "we sold close to $2 million in pottery, and a lot of it went to collectors."

Each of the potters had his own personal stamp, plus sometimes collectors would request signatures as well. Keith marked his pieces with "SK."

"When Scott Gillmer sold the business, I decided to take some time off," Keith said. He did some substitute teaching in Red Wing and Goodhue schools.

Then toward the end of last year, Keith reconnected with Philippe Petit, owner of Pottery Place Mall, who expressed an interest in getting a pottery business started in the mall.

"I started working on the space in January and February," Keith said, and he ordered the necessary equipment and materials to create and market pottery onsite.

By mid-March he was producing pottery; a grand opening was held in April. He is continuing the practice of marking his work. The Red Brick Pottery stamp depicts — our course — a brick.

Keith is now making functional earthenware and stoneware, mostly glazed in an earthtone color palate. "It's not salt-glaze," he said, but is more a matte finish he considers "reminiscent of Red Wing's Art Deco art pottery look."

This summer he will work to develop his own glazes.

He creates individualized folk art collectible pieces in addition to bowls and mugs, teapots and cups, three-neck vases, magnets and key chains, miniatures, snakes and lizards, and crocks of many colors.

"It's my own style," Keith said. "As a potter, I'm developing all along. This is another chapter in my development as a potter."

Red Brick Pottery also expects to carry local handcrafts and other items.

Scott Keith is making folk art collectibles as well as traditional items at Red Brick Pottery.

Simple tools are used to create design elements.

Scott Keith's hand-thrown pieces are fired in a kiln at Red Brick Pottery.

Mugs and bowls in a matte finish can be found at the new pottery business in Pottery Place mall.

CROCK HUNT

July 3-11, 2015

RULES: The Crock Hunt begins on Friday, July 3. Both Red Wing Collectors Society Members and non-members are eligible to participate in the 2015 RWCS Convention Crock Hunt. Participants must locate each display pictured site during regular business hours to match the business logo and photo. Participants must obtain an employee initials (or other mark chosen by the site) from each site. Winners drawn will have their forms checked to ensure that answers are correct before a prize is awarded. Winners do not need to be present to win.

Completed forms must be brought to the Convention Show and Sale, Saturday, July 11 between 10:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. at Red Wing High School.

Participating businesses feature at least one piece of old or new Red Wing pottery in their picture. The business logo is not included in the picture. Both the photo and business logo are printed at random on the Crock Hunt form published in the Convention Supplement, for download at ERWCS.org or at selected site locations.
